The War of the Liquor Inspectors.—The war of the merchants against the recently-appointed Liquor Inspectors has ceased, and the Inspectors are now quarreling among themselves. The dealers employ whom they please, regardless of the appointments made by the Commissioners for the purpose, and the authorized parties have entered their protest. Yesterday morning Dr. S. G. Menzies appeared at the Police Court and caused a warrant to be issued against Alonzo W. Churchill, charging him with "unlawfully exercising the office of gauger and inspector of domestic spirits, without the authority of the City Council of the City of Cincinnati." C. O. Andress caused a like warrant to be issued against William Skillinger, charged with the same offense. The Cost of entire repairs would not exceed $600.

The Trustees of Sycamore Township called the attention of the Commissioners, a few days ago, to a small bridge near Reading, on the road leading from Reading to Montgomery. The Shiveyar was instructed to examine said bridge, and reported vesterday morning that the whole work will have to be built anew, and recommended that it be done immediately, as it is the main road over which those living in Reading hand their wood. The cost will be about $100.

The Board not being present, yeste day morning, no action was taken on the above, but it is probable that the Commissioners will give orders for the immediate repairs of the bridges, as it is a work of actual necessity.

ANSIVERSARY OF THE LADIES' HOME MIS-SIGNARY SOCIETY.—Address of the Managers the anniversary of the Ladies' Home Mis-sionary Society was held last night at Trinity Church, Ninth-street, near Race The exercises were opened with music and prayer, after which the report of the managers was read by Mrs. Wilber.

In apeaking of the labors of the Society during the year, the report says the Brighton Mission English Sunday-school. J. Cumming, Superintendent, numbering eighty, and the German, Rev. R. A. W Bruehl, Superintendent, numbering 20 pupils, are in a very flourishing condition.

The Carr-street Mission Schools, American J. Weidman, Superintendent, has enrolled 250 pupils, and the German, under the super-intenpence of Rev. R. A. W. Bruehl, has

The Deercreek Mission, J. Lumstead,

The Deercreek Mission, J. Lumstead, Superintendent, number sixty pupils, showing a gradual increase in number since its commencement, which is particularly gratifying to the Society.

Mears Chapel Sunday-school, the English portion under the control of W. McCord, numbers 150, and the German under the superintendence of Rev. A. W. Bruchl, numbers forty pupils. It is located in the Fourth Ward, one of the worst localities in the city, and its success, under the circumstances, is regarded as extremely gratifying.

Fulton Mission Sunday-school, under the management of Rev. R. A. W. Bruchl, has enrolled forty pupils, regular in attendance, and evincing an earnestness of purpose.

The Clark-street Mission-schools, organized a little more than a year ago, the English ized a little more than a year ago, the English department of which is under the control of G. H. Wolff, numbers 350, and the German department, Rev. R. A. W. Bruehl, Superintendent, numbers forty pupils. They are punctual in their attendance and evince a sincere interest in the methods. a sincere interest in the truths they are a sincere interest in the truths they are weekly taught.

The East Pearl-street School, J. Darby, Superintendant, has 170 pupils. Their intelligence and reform give the greatest encouragement to the workers in this field.

Fairmount Mission-school, J. Eistner, Superintendent, numbers seventy, and the Camp Washington school, J. De Rodes Superintendent, numbers sixty pupils. Both of these have been established within the year, and have thus far been eminently successful. In the thirteen Mission-schools the aggrgate number of teachers is 107; of pupils, 1,570; of volumes in the libraries, 1,540, and Sunday-school Advocates, distributed month-Beside these schools, there are four Mission Churches, with a membership that amounts to 226, under the direction of the Society, in which there is preaching every Sunday, morning and evening. About sixty conversions have taken place during the year. The congregations are increasing, and uniformly attentive.

The Clark-street Mission Chapel has been erected, and entirely paid for during the past year, at a cost of $1,500. Two excellent class-rooms have been recently added by the friends of the Mission, without the assistance of the Society, at a cost of $200.

Judge J. Collings, of Adams County, Ohio, has donated to the Society three lots, in Fulton, valued at $150 each. Many thousand pages of religious reading matter, in sand pages of religious reading matter, in English and German, have been distributed in public institutions, and in general visiting, and, with very few exceptions, received with apparent interest and pleasure.

The missionaries of the Society, Rev. T. Collett and Rev. J. F. Wright, in addition to their other duties, have visited the Commercial Hospital weekly, and report it as a field of special interest. They have also visited the City Prison, while the voluntary visiting committees have distributed 1,500 garments and 500 pairs of shoes, besides naving made sundry contributions of money to needy parties.
In conclusion, the managers, through their report, earnestly solicit the continued co-op-eration and large-hearted benevolence of their friends. The Home Missions are an their friends. The Home Missions are an element of moral power, and tend to combine moral culture with intellectual development, the only method of producing the noblest man and womanhood.

According to the report of the Treasurer, the receipts amounted during the year to $2,647.36, and the disbursements to $2,619.29, leaving a balance in the Treasury of $28.07.

An address was delivered by Rev. W. A. Snively, which was quite eloquent and interesting. A collection was taken up for the benefit of the Society, and after music by the choir, the meeting, which was largely attended, adjourned.

DEATH OF A WELL-KNOWN COMPOSITOR. The many friends of John C. Stuart will be deeply pained to hear of his death, which occurred on the 8th inst., in Wilmington, Delaware. Mr. Stuart was well and favorably known in this city, having been employed in several of our daily newspaper offices, and also in St. Louis, where he followed his avocation for several years.

Like so many of his profession, Mr. Stuart, a highly intelligent, warm-hearted and generous-souled fellow, fell a victim to that insidious and subtle foe of life, consumption—

erous-souled fellow, fell a victim to that insidious and subtle foe of life, consumption—a disease so often superinduced by the continuous labor and exhausting toil inseparably associated with the life of a compositor upon a daily journal in a great city.

There are few of his craft or acquaintances, who, when they hear of his demise, will not pause a moment to bestow a thought of affection upon his goodness, and recall some noble act he was so happy to perform.

He died, we are gratified to say, in the bosom of relatives, who fondly cherished him, and his last sigh was exhaled in an atmosphere made sacred by sympathy and atmosphere made sacred by sympathy and REPUBLICAN MEETING .- Hon. John Juriey delivered an address before the Re-sublican Club, at Oddfellows' Hall, last hight. The attendance was quite large, and every thing passed off quietly.

BRECKINGIDGE MEETING .- Jas. B. Clay Lieutenant-Governor Porter and others, addressed the citizens of Covington, last night, in favor of Breekinridge and Lane.

Mr. Breckinridge did not come, as advertised, but a telegraph dispatch was received from him stating that he would certainly be at Florence to-day. Messrs. Yancey and Lane will likewise be present.

CONVALESCENT .- We notice that Dr. J. W Fox has recovered from his recent severe illness, and is again attending to his

An Eccentric Character in England. An Eccentric Character in England.
The inhabitants of the New Forest, in England, have long been acquainted with an eccentric character named William Cutler, who, some years ago, quitted his farm, leaving the gathered crops in the wagons, until toth the homestead, the grain, and the wagons, fell into complete decay, and erected a wretched hovel on some property belonging to the Earl of Normanton, at Ashley Heath, where he was locally designated the "Forest Robinson Crusoe." At this place he turned his attention to bee keeping. The kees proved a great annoyance to a neighboring farmer, who represented the inconveni-turned his attention to bee keeping. The kees proved a great annoyance to a neighboring farmer, who represented the inconvenience to which he was subjected to the Earl of Normanton; but neither entreaty nor the offer of money or another piece of land on the part of the noble Earl's agents could induce Cutler to move. A warrant of ejection was recently obtained, and it was placed for execution in the hands of a sheriff's officer.

A few days ago the officer procured plenty of help, and proceeded to put the warrant into execution. He found between 200 and 300 hives of live bees. How they were to be removed was a difficult question. Cutler moved among them in safety; they lodged upon his arms and body without stinging him; but the Sheriff's representatives experienced a sharp reception. After some maneuvering they got Cutler to the hedge bounding the place, and as far as possible from the hives, which they were much aftaid he would upset. He declared he was determined to stop, and he was therefore put into a cart, the horse was driven off, and he was left on the highway, at a considerable distance from the place at which he commenced his involuntary journey. Cutler's wife, an invalid, was next carefully removed by some females. The bees could not be safely meddled with in the daytime, and it took the men three whole nights to remove the bees to a piece of Cutler's land, an orchard, seven miles distant. They were stung severely, and were heartily glad when they had concluded their novel and unstung severely, and were heartily glad when they had concluded their novel and un-pleasant task.

How the Prince of Wales Obtained An MISSION TO THE NEW YORK BALL,—It has been very confidently asserted, says the New York Times, that the Prince of Wales, on appearing at the Academy Ball in a blue waistcoat with gold buttons, was refused admittance by the modern Petronius who presided over the Committee of Reception, and forced to return to his hotel, there to don the regulation black which the regulation black, which we have the high authority of Mr. Peter Cooper for regarding the ne plus ultra of full dress.

We are assured that all this is entirely wide of the record. The first glory of the gas-lights which fell upon the form of England's royal heir did indeed amaze the venerable arbiter of New York elegance with an azure gleam about the Prince's youthful breast. But on throwing back the lapels of the Prince's coat, and completely inspecting his under-garments, it was dis-inspecting his under-garments, it was dis-covered that the objectionable effect was produced by the broad, blue ribbon of the Garter; and although in the circular of the Committee no exception had been made in favor of this article of attire, yet, after much deliberation in which a degree a better deliberation, in which a clergyman, a hatter, a judge and two medical men took part, it was finally decided that if garters were excluded in one case they must be in all cases, and the Prince was, accordingly permitted to pass. to pass.

A Novelist's Fiction Paralleled by Reality.—Dickens's story of Mr. Dorrit liv-ing so long in a debtor's prison that he was ing so long in a debtor's prison that he was at home nowhere else, has been paralleled by reality, as, indeed, all the most improbable novelists often are. Sir Francis Desanges, (Knight), who had been Sheriff of London and Middlesex, and also of Oxfordshire, recently expired in the Queen's Prisen. He had been an inmate of this gloomy abode for over four years. "Mrs. Clifford, the daughter of the deceased, stated that her father was seventy-five years of age, and had bitterly complained of his imprisonment." In these few words lies the gist of a story probably quite as sad as that conjured up by the prolific imagination of the great British romancer. Indeed, the true tale is more pathetic still than the fictitious. The real Dorrit died in his prison, the imaginary character had a respite from his trials.

AN EDITOR SUED FOR REFUSING TO TELL HIS AGE.—The editor of the Clark County (Va.) Journal, A. R. Parkins, appeared last week before the Federal District Court at Staunton, Judge Brokenbrough presiding, to answer a presentment for refusing to answer questions propounded to him by the Marshal, under the census act, and made an elaborate speech in his own behalf, demouncing the law as tyrannical and unconstituelaborate speech in his own behalf, denouncing the law as tyrannical and unconstitutional. The only question which he refused to answer, however, was as to his age. Judge Brokenbrough reserved his decision till the next term, and in the meantime the constitutionality of the law will be decided by the Circuit Court of the United States at Richmond.

SINGULAR DEATH OF AN EAGLE AT SEA. Capt. Howland, of the schoener Sea Gull, arrived at Providence, the other day, from Baltimore. He reports that, on Tuesday morning, while he was in latitude 38° and longitude 74° 48′—far out to sea, and during a gale of wind—an eagle flew against the main peak halyards, broke his wing, fell to the deck and was killed. He measured five feet and four inches from the tip of one wing to that of the other.

SUICIDE OF A SOUTHERNER FROM FEAR OF SLAVE-INSURRECTION.—The Louisville (S. C.)

Herald states that last week a citizen, in the upper part of that district, Isham S. Bolt, committed suicide, by blowing out his brains with a shot-gun. It seems that he had been much harrassed in mind with the fear of an insurrection for some time, and had lain with his arms beside him the night before his death.

Richness of the Texas Lead Mine.—The lead mine recently discovered in Texas, eighty miles from Roma, is turning out two tuns per day. The proprietor is increasing his smelting facilities, and expects seen to be able to get out ten or twelve tuns daily. Quite a number of northern smelters went upon the ranchero a few days since. Speaking of a Wide-awake demonstration, the New York Times reporter said: "Illuminations abounded, and bouquets of ladies exhaled their sweetness upon the passing lines."

A Pinchbeck Wedding in St. Louis-Taw-Yesterday's St. Louis Democrat observes

Yesterday's St. Louis Democrat observes.
An event long in anticipation in fashionable circles, took place last evening at St. George's Church, and was witnessed by one of the largest assemblages of the beauty, wealth and fashion of St. Louis that has ever been congregated under one roof. The occasion of this outpouring of fashion was the marriage of one of our most enterprising and successful merchants. Mr. Derrick A. January, to a young and lovely daughter of Kentucky, Miss Julia Churchill. The preparations for this event have been the theme of conversation for several weeks—the wealthy portion of the community sharing largely in the agitation, and causing considerable calculation among the fairer members of the "upper ten" as to what should be worn, and how it should be made up.

The bridal party entered by the easierm aisle, and proceeded slowly toward the chancel. The invited guests first, and the principals of this interesting affair last. Mr. January was dressed with all the taste of a polished gentleman—black pantaleous and coat, rich white silk vest, faultiessly-pure linen, in the midst of which a gem of the first water glittered brightly, and white kid gloves. The bride—what shall we say of her? Miss Churchill, since her arrival in this city, has been recognized as one of its loveliest belles, and last evening, attired in her wedding-dress, looked surpassingly beautiful. Her dress was plain—a great deal plainer than most of those present expected to see; but what need, with her wealth of beauty, her superb figure, and her grace-deal plainer than most of those present ex-pected to see; but what need, with her wealth of beauty, her superb figure, and her grace-ful carriage, to add artificial ornaments? A simple white satin dress, cut with Grecian waist, a rich bertha of point d'applique; a waist, a rich bertha of point dapplione; a wreath of orange-blossoms, from which a blonde lace vail dropped in ample fold, completed her attire. A magnificent brooch, composed of a cluster of seventeen large diamonds, the solitairs alone valued at over $1,000, sparkled upon the frontispiece of the bertha, while correspondingly rich diamond ear-rings reflected the vari-colored rays of the rainbow, as the fair wearer moved up the aisie.

mys of the rainbow, as the fair wearer moved up the aiste.

The expectant couple walked with a firm step, Mr. January holding his head as erect and proudly as if he were a mighty king about to take possession of a mighty throne, and the lady, with her head bowed, in the last expiring blush of maidenhood. The company occupied the seats provided for them, and the bride and bridegroom took their positions before the railing in front of the altar.

Bishop Hawks then approached and slowly and impressively read the marriage service of the Episcopal Church, well known for its beauty and solemnity. The responses were promptly given—the ring passed—the hands joined—the prayer offered—the holy words, "Whom God hath joined together, let no man put saunder" pronounced, and two loving hearts (as we trust) were joined in one. The scene which followed it is unnecessary to describe. The bride was given away by Mr. Andrew McKinley, and when the ceremony was over there were the usual congratulations and blessings all around. The benignant countenance which Mr. January habitually wears was never more January habitually wears was never more smiling, while the bride, blushing and happy, fairly spoke in every lineament of her face an expression of joy.

The bridal party was particularly joyous
The ladies were each and all dressed with exquisite taste, and among whom diamonds glistened by the score, and the gentlemen were never better dressed or more attentive than now. They were not long escaping from the multitude, however, and making their way to carriages at the door. The wedding festivities were continued at the residence of the bridegroom, on Washing-ton-avenue, till a late hour.

A GRAVE NOBLEMAN-Duke Dombey Newcastle.-A correspondent of the New York Evening Post thus describes the Duke, as he appeared at the New York Ball:

Next to St. Germains is Mr. Dombey, as Rext to St. Germains is Mr. Dombey, as stiff and precise as a Japanese Embassador of such high rank that you have to go up in a balloon to reach it, and wearing a white cravat, from which at least a dozen country parsons could be supplied for six months each. People who ought to know, however, inform me that this august personnge is not Mr. Dombey, but the Duke of Newcastle; so my first impression is probably erroneous. Next to Duke Dombey sits, in the corne of the box nearest the stage, Lord Lyons, and the other occupants of the box are General Bruce, Consul Kortwright and Mayor Henry. The two finest-looking men are Bruce and Henry. It is interesting enough

Bruce and Heary. It is interesting enough to see the Prince appland, as his example is followed with charming mechanical precision by his friends. But it is positively worth shekels of gold to behold the Duke Dombey at this critical moment.

To him the meaning of "hearty applause" is gently patting the back of the right hand with two fingers of the left, and patting his glove as though it were a kitten troubled with neuralgia in the head. A mummy, a grand Lama of Thibet, Michael Angelo's statue of Moses, could not be more majestically severe in its demonstration. Were I status of moses, could not be more impes-tically severe in its demonstration. Were I a singer, I should profer to have a bucket of ice-water thrown on me by Duke Dombey than to be the object of his frigid commenda-

A DUEL IN JEST PROVES A PAINFUL TRAGEDY .- A Southern gentleman, in an article in the Boston Evening Express, regarding noted affrays and duels in the South, gives the following, which occurred upward of thirty years ago, at Petersburg, Virginia:

A shocking affair took place some thirty or more years since, at Petersburg, Va. Some young men, doubting the courage of a friend and companion, arranged a plan to draw him into a duel with one of the number—the seconds to be in the plot, and the pistols to be loaded without balls. The duel was arranged, but during the preliminaries, the in-tended victim was led to suspect the truth but kept silent. On repairing to the field, the father of the principal in the plot hid himself in the bushes near by to witness the himself in the bushes near by to witness the anticipated sport.

A shot was exchanged—without effect, of course. The supposed coward domanded a second fire, and the same result followed. He then stated that, anticipating the possibility of this, he had provided a couple of pistols, which he produced, and which he piedged his honor were carefully loaded, and tendered them for the choice of his opponent. The farce was ended, and the intended joke became a fearful reality, as the result proved. The distance being but five paces, both fell at the first fire—one killed outright, and the other mortally wounded. What were the feelings of the father, as he bore his dead son from the field of sport!

A NEW YORK SPORTING JOURNAL IN LEGAL DIFFICULTY.—A case recently came before the New York courts, in which Thomas B. Thorpe brought action against Edward E. Jones and Richard Hays, of the Spirit of the Times. This is an action to dissolve a partnership hitherto existing between the parties to the action in the publication of that widely-known and oldest sporting paper in the United States.

widely-known and oldest sporting paper in the United States.

The plaintiff, who is the author of "Tom Owens, the Bee Hunter," and other Western sketches, claims to be an equal partner in the concern, and alleges that the paper, as at present conducted, is rapidly on the decline, and that the defendants will soon ruin the partnership unless the publication of the naper; staken out of their hands.

The plaintiff avers that, although an equal partner in the business, still the defendants have usurped authority, and that they frequently throw out articles he intended for publication, thus depriving him of that right and authority to which his position entitles him. He avers that, notwithstanding the present low condition of the paper, it could soon be made, by proper management, a valuable publication, and to return a large and remnuerative income. a large and remunerative income.

SIGNIFICANT HINT TO TRAVELERS. - "DO you see this stick, sir," said a very stupid ecquaintance to Sidney Smith, "this stick has been all round the world, sir." "Indeed," said the remorseless Sidney, "and yet it is only a stick." The story is venerable but pertinent.

The Prince of Wales at Boston.

Boston, October 18.—The weather is delightful, and the demonstration in honor of the Prince elaborate and imposing. The public buildings are decorated, and the stucets are thronged. About 3,000 men, including cavalry and artillery, are now being reviewed on the Common by Goy. Banks, the Prince, and a numerous and brilliant staff. Ralph Farnises, the Bunkee Hill man, was introduced to the Prince this morning. The interview was quite interesting.

ROMAN CHARIOT RACE IN SAN FRANCISCO. San Francisco never was a very mortal city. As it grows older we fear it grows worse, As it grows older we fear it grows worse, judging by the following from a recent Alta Californian: "The Roman charlot race, over the Pioneer Course, was a curious attraction, and drew crowds. The drivers were Missa Hortense Stevenson and Annette Baker, who dreve three heats around the course at full gallop. They were dressed in Roman tunies, with not a superfluity of drapery, while the trappings of the horses (double teams) were in imitation of ancient regalla, such as is seen in the antique paintings. The first heat was made in two minutes ten seconds. The second in two minutes the trity-four seconds—the two competitors coming in very nearly the third in two minutes thirty-four seconds—the two competitions coming in very nearly side by side, but Miss Stevenson taking the prize, which was a diamond cross from Tucker's jewelry store. The crowd cheered tremendously, bets ran high, and there was an exciting time generally. The driving was remarkable for its daring and rapidity.

Horrible Torross From a Railroad Accipest—A Man Gradually Scalded to Desth. The telegraph to the Passs has announced a terrible accident on the Central Ohio Railroad, by which the fireman, Chas. Rees, and engineer, James Fronse, were killed. The Columbus, C., Journal says: "Frense was caught by the legs with a portion of the wreck and held fast in a recumbent position, and the boiling water from the engine pouring slowly upon him and acading him to death. He begged the passengers to kill him at once and put him out of his misery, or to release him from his horrible situation, but they were unable to extricate him until life was nearly extinct and the consciousness of suffering had passed away. The track of the road was tore up for nearly 300 yards, and the engine and tender is a complete wreck."
